- ✓ Learn about occidental cultural and business practices

The Swiss Center Shanghai has the great pleasure to inform its members and friends that we will launch a Business English Training course with a native English teacher, starting from May 2016.

The training is designed to enhance the English level of the participating companies' employees and to raise their confidence level to use English in a business environment.

Furthermore, it aims to raise the awareness of the participants about cultural differences in general and about different business practices in other parts of this world. In order to achieve this goal and to keep motivation high, we apply a dual program structure. The course content is divided into grammar & vocabulary practice and the teaching of US/UK/European cultural and business practices. Students are encouraged to practice speaking as much as possible and to ask as many questions as they can.

The English training is tailor-made for students with intermediate English level.

Tutor:

Swiss Center Shanghai is happy to announce Mr David R. Harrison as a tutor for the Business English training. Mr Harrison is currently teaching academic English (EAP/ESL) to business and commerce major students, after having spent more than two years in Saudi Arabia, teaching technical and academic English to Saudi engineering students at a vocational college. Prior to the Saudi assignment he taught six years general ESL in Taiwan. He possesses a TESOL certificate as well as the hands-on experience. He teaches modern business vocabulary, staff communication skills in business relationships with overseas associates and cross-cultural understanding. He specialises in helping his students to build confidence in their appearance and speech.
